Leopold Delisle, Director-General of the National Library in France, for all knowledge of them in this country. Their importance for the illustration of English history, from the Conquest to the reign of Henry VIII., their value as evidence on many controverted questions, and for the elucidation of ambiguous points in history, is unquestionable, and as much too important to be overlooked, as their investigation is to be deferred to a distant future. The main object, therefore, of these pages is to bring them at once to the notice of the record-student and historian, and to render them, as far as possible, accessible to both. When we consider the numerous foundations dependent on the Abbey of Cluni, and the estates it held in England, there can be no reason to doubt that the enumeration and description of those MSS. and charters which have interest for this country, will afford facility for further research in a field entirely new, and rich in materials for general and conventual history. To quote only a few instances of their value proved by recent investigation. The two first documents named on the list are the original confirmation-charter of St. Pancras, and the Inspeximus or attested copy of Earl Warenne s second foundation-charter of that Cluniac priory.
